CHRISTIAN SPIRITUALITY AS A PATHWAY FOR THE MODERN SEEKER

We live in a time where there is great curiosity and much exploration of spirituality. It is ironic that many, who awaken to spiritual consciousness, would see Christianity and the church as the last place they would look. How can Christian spirituality be a better servant to the culture and society in such desperate need of experiencing peace, meaning and belonging?

SPIRITUS JOURNAL CALL FOR POETRY SUBMISSIONS AND BOOK REVIEWS

POETRY SUBMISSIONS

Guidelines:

- Poetry by poets living in the southern hemisphere is especially welcomed, and particularly poetry reflecting issues in, and perspectives from, the Australia/New Zealand/Pacific Islands region;
- Include up to 5 poems as a single attachment, with a short biographical statement. Work already published or under consideration elsewhere will not be considered;
- Acceptance for publication is at the discretion of the Spiritus Poetry Editor;
- The final date for submission is 1 October, 2023
- Poetry selected will be for publication in the Spring 2024 issue of Spiritus.

Poetry submissions should be sent directly to: Mark S. Burrows, Spiritus Poetry Editor [mark.s.burrows@gmail.com]

BOOK REVIEWS

Guidelines:

- Reviews of books written by southern hemisphere authors are especially sought, as are books reflecting issues in, and perspectives from, the Australia/New Zealand/Pacific Islands region;
- And/or undertaken by reviewers who live in the southern hemisphere similarly;
- Reviews should be of books related to Christian spirituality, either directly or indirectly related to the conference theme, but also general books on spirituality will be welcome;
- Acceptance for publication is at the discretion of the book review sub-editor Spiritus Book Review Editor;
- Approximately 1200 words in length single-spaced;
- The final date for submission is 1 October, 2023;
- Reviews selected will be for publication in the Spring 2024 issue of Spiritus.

Book reviews should be sent directly to: Amanda Kaminski, Texas Lutheran University [akaminski@tlu.edu]

To avoid potential submission of duplicate reviews, be sure to confirm with the Book Review Editor, in advance, and as early as possible, the book title you propose to review. Reviewers are also expected to follow the Guide Sheet for book reviews, which is available upon request.
